A CHURCHWIDE FOCUS ON GOD'S WORD IN OUR LIVES

BY PASTOR ANDREW GILMAN

The life of a follower of Jesus is full of God's grace and purpose both corporately and individually. That's just another way of saying that we are transformed by our relationship with Jesus in how we live together with others in the church as well as in our personal lives. Sanctification that takes place on an individual level works itself out at the community level.

These dynamics of discipleship and spiritual growth are not a one-way street. What we do on Sundays together as a church, listening to sermons, praying, singing, greeting and fellowshiping together. These activities undoubtedly play a large role in our sanctification according to God's plan for our lives. And yet the private time spent with God in study of His Word and prayer are also critical in God's program of transformation to Christ's image for each of those who belong to Him by faith. What we do individually at home in devoting ourselves to Christ individually plays a large role in God's work in our midst corporately as a church. (Cont. pg. 8)

Q. 75. WHAT IS SANCTIFICATION?

A. Sanctification is a work of God's grace for those whom God has chosen to be holy before the beginning of the world and to whom in time the powerful operation of the Spirit¹ applies the death and resurrection of Christ.² They are thus renewed in their whole persons after the image of God,³ have the seeds of repentance unto life and all the other saving graces put into their hearts,⁴ and these graces are so aroused, increased, and strengthened⁵ that they more and more die to sin and rise into newness of life.⁶

This year at FPC we want to heighten our focus on God's Word in our daily routines and priorities. Creating new routines is always difficult. Creating new routines in areas of life that are low on our list of priorities is even harder. Ultimately, we would like to say that our hearts are so thankful for God's love and forgiveness that we would willingly and regularly carve out time to spend with Him each day. Perhaps you have had seasons of life where that is the case. There are other times in life where we feel this is not how we would characterize our spiritual habits.

The truth is that our feelings shift on any given day and if we were to wait until we feel the mood strike us to spend time with God, we will find ourselves increasingly passing this time by for the business of daily life. Our spiritual health will suffer if we do not commit ourselves to this discipline of spending time with the Lord; reading His Word and praying about what we find there. This is a spiritual discipline of the Christian Walk that many call—a quiet time with the Lord.

Quiet time is the intentional time spent with God in meditative silence. It is intentional time spent with a lifelong friend. It is one on one time with the Creator of the universe. It is soul restorative moments of rejuvenation. Quiet time can be a set time or intermittent moments where you steal away in order to connect with your Abba father.

Why is quiet time with God important?

The importance of quiet time is best explained by understanding its connection to our prayer life. Personal time with God is often thought of as prayer, and in many ways, it is. Let's consider prayer the way God created it. Prayer is a two-way conversation, but too often modern society sees prayer as a one-way list of requests. Often our prayers stop when we stop talking. But God's intention for prayer was that it was a two-way communication. It "stops" when God answers us.

We all know that the Bible instructs us to pray without ceasing. We certainly should be willing and able to pray to God throughout our day. But this notion of quiet time set aside to be with the Lord in prayer is distinct from that more continuous attitude and practice of prayer. This is the time that we willingly set aside to be alone, unimpeded or interrupted, with the Lord.

Alone time with God takes this difference between God's intention for prayer and our actual realization of prayer into consideration. Quiet time makes allowance for the two-way nature of prayer. Other benefits of quiet time include:

- Restoration through intentional quietness
- Connection with God is increased
- Time to listen to God
- Grow in faith through the understanding of God's word
- Helps us slow down and remove ourselves from the busyness

Spending time with God is not only beneficial but also necessary. Time in the presence of God is time well spent. It's time where we get to steward the health of our souls well.

Bible verses about spending time with God

In the beginning of the Bible, we are told that God created everything, He created man and woman, and then He walked alongside those first humans. God's initial design was communion with himself. He desired that we would walk with him and grow in him. But we are flawed, and we chose a different path. Since the beginning and the fall, God's been restoration.

The Bible is full of examples of people finding ways to walk with God and get away to be restored by God's presence. The following scriptures about quiet time give us a better indication of the benefits and importance of spending quiet time with God.

He says, "Be still and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth." (Psalm 46:10)

One of the hallmarks of quiet time is the stillness that it requires. This isn't so much a stillness of body, some people find that their quiet time is spent best while hiking or doing some other physical activity. The stillness that this verse reminds us of is a stillness of mind and heart. It is a quieting of the thoughts and emotions that try to compete with the significance of God's voice in our lives. Our quiet time with God gives us a chance to be still and know or remember that God is God.

Come near to God and he will come near to you. Wash your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double minded. (James 4:8)

This verse about quiet time encourages us that God's presence accompanies our call. When we are intentional about drawing near to Him, he honors that move and his presence is revealed. As we chose to find ways to grow spiritually and to better our relationship with God, he shows us that He has always been with us.

But when you pray, go into your room, close the door and pray to your Father, who is unseen. Then your Father, who sees what is done in secret, will reward you. (Matthew 6:6)

This quiet time verse gives us some direction for how we should approach our quiet time. Instead of making our time spent with God a public display, we should instead find a quiet place where we can focus our undivided attention on God.

Truly my soul finds rest in God; my salvation comes from him. (Psalm 62:1)

Restoration is one of the truly great benefits of quiet time. Our souls can become weary from all of the stress of day-to-day life, and the problems of society. When all around you, there is uncertainty and crisis, the Lord is our Salvation and personal time with Him can heal!

Very early in the morning, while it was still dark, Jesus got up, left the house and went off to a solitary place, where he prayed. (Mark 1:35)

This may perhaps be the most important scripture on this list of verses about quiet time. Our Savior had quiet time. In his time on Earth he modeled what life should look like for us. He modeled humility, serving, kindness, unconditional love, and how to live a connected life. He constantly took the time to go away and pray.

His connection to the Father while complete was enhanced for us by his constant willingness to make deliberate space to meet with God. We should look to him and follow his lead in understanding that NOTHING should stand between you and God's Love. Nor should you let the business of your day interfere with the important matter of spending time with God.

Here are some thoughts on how to get started.

How do you spend time with God?

1. Set the atmosphere

Whether you enjoy calming music, a hike in nature, sitting on the beach, or complete darkness. The first step in spending time with God is to set the atmosphere. Welcome his presence by removing distractions. This could be your cell phone or making sure that the room you will be using is organized and decluttered.

2. Prepare your heart

The second step is to prepare your heart. This is an early prayer for me. This is asking God's presence into your space. You can do this through worship and prayer. Pray that God would not only show up, but also show you were there may be separation between you and him. Repent for any sins you can remember committing and ask for forgiveness for those which you may have done unintentionally.

You can also turn over any significant issues on your mind to him. This could be family issues, work issues, health issues. All of the things that could start to seem overwhelming when you dive into intentional quiet time.

3. Read his word

The next step is to dive into God's word. You could do a topical bible study, or verse mapping. Maybe you have a reading plan that walks you through the entire bible. Whatever the plan for reading the word of God, do it. Reading his word is a way to better know his voice. When you know what he has said in the past, you can more easily distinguish his voice from others in the presence. You can read a chapter or just a few verses. This reading is not a matter of getting through the Bible in a year. It is to be a small portion of God's Word that you search and labor over in your heart as you seek God's voice and will for your life.

4. Meditate on the word

After reading you will want to meditate on the word of God. This will likely be where the quiet time begins. As you read his word, go slowly, stop when a word or a phrase sticks out to you. You can underline these words and phrases to review now or later.

This meditation time can also be less active. You can also simply begin dwelling on the words. After reading through the passage a few times. Think on the words or phrases that stick out in your memory. Contemplate these quietly.

5. Listen for his voice

This is the step where things can be difficult for the person who is new to quiet time with God. This step you are simple still and quiet. At this stage of your quiet time you want to be conscious about minimizing distractions. You will want to make sure to focus on the quiet voice.

When you find a thought that does not seem of God come up, you can acknowledge it and then return your mind to those words or phrases from your meditation of God's word. When you are just starting out, you can set a timer. Start small, perhaps 5 minutes of calm silence is enough to begin. Gradually you can increase that time.

6. Write down His answer

The last step in learning how to have quiet time with God is to write down what he says to you. It could be those words or phrases that stood out to you during your meditation on his word. It could also be a revelation about his character or about your own. It could be a sin you had forgotten or a dream he has for you. Whatever it is, use your prayer journal and write these things down.

This allows you to be constantly reminded of God's faithfulness in your life and thus allows you to continue to walk in faith in the plans he has for you.

If we will each individually commit to our personal spiritual health by spending this time in God's Word, we will also become a more vibrant and healthy community of worshippers on Sundays. Let's spend this year pursuing God's plans and purposes for us as believers and as a church. Praise God that He has such wonderful plans for each of us. Let's build into our daily lives a priority to spend this time with God.
